

FREE

E-learning Course

WATER DIPLOMACY AND INTEGRATION OF WATER NORMS IN PEACEBUILDING

Online, self-paced

- Explore the intersection between water and peace.
- Understand why (and how) transboundary waters can create valuable opportunities for cooperation and dialogue.
- Learn to negotiate and integrate sustainable water governance in dialogue and processes linked to conflict prevention and peacebuilding.

Developed by:

With the support of:

 Federal Ministry
Republic of Austria
European and International Affairs

photo credit: @FelixBerger on www.flickr.com

While conflicting demands over shared waters can create political tensions, water diplomacy and cooperation can become a tool for preventing and resolving such conflicts.

Objectives

- To provide theoretical and practical tools for integrating sustainable water governance in dialogue and processes linked to conflict prevention and peacebuilding.
- To increase the capacity of individuals and institutions in using water as an entry point for cooperation and dialogue.

Programme

- Module 1. Hydropolitics
- Module 2. International water law
- Module 3. Conflict management: introduction and basics

Learning methods

- Combination of theoretical and practical inputs.
- Combination of learning videos, podcasts with experts, and supporting materials.
- Combination of formative and certifying evaluation.

Public

Water practitioners, professional negotiators, and university students with a keen interest in water management and its interlinkages with peacebuilding processes.

Certificate

Verified certificate from edX.

Developed by:

With the support of:

